

Those Boston Girls.
Arthur—Miss Smarte called me a lobster last night; at least, she insinuated that I was.
Frank—I think you must have been mistaken. I can't believe she'd do such a thing as that.
Arthur—Well, then, what did she mean by answering me as she did? I said I never was so happy as when I was in the water, and she said: "Naturally." What did that mean? I should like to know, if it wasn't that I was a lobster?

CONSUMPTION

THE RACE FOR AMERICA'S CUP.

AMERICA'S CUP, the Blue Ribbon of the Sea, has inspired yachtsmen to put forth their mightiest efforts ever since it was captured from them by the victorious America half a century ago. The attempts of Sir Thomas Lipton, Bart., to "lift the mug" are familiar to every American who takes an interest in sports, especially in yachting. It seems almost incredible that so much money, what would be more than an ample fortune even in these days of huge accumulations of wealth, should be spent with no other object than to secure a silver cup of little intrinsic value. A few figures concerning the cost of the pastime in which Sir Thomas is indulging so freely should be of interest to lovers of thorough sportsmanship.

He estimated the expense of his effort to get the cup in 1890 at $800,000. That, however, included $400,000 which he paid to Count Florio, of Italy, for the fine yacht which the Count called the Aegusa, and which is now known as the Erin. This would leave his actual racing expenses in 1890 at $400,000. It is probable that the cost of the second race to him was a little over that figure, but still within $500,000. In other words, including the sum of $500,000 or thereabouts for the purchase and refitting of the Erin, the total cost to the challenger in the last two series of races was somewhere in the neighborhood of $1,000,000. But the cost of the Erin is not, of course, a legitimate factor in the estimate of the actual racing expenses. Probably these last for both series were $850,000.

Leaving the yacht proper and coming to the collateral expenses, there is sentiments of an influential yachting element when it says that the truth is that the larger problems of yacht design have been solved, and we owe their solution to the struggle for the America's Cup. The American type of yacht is no longer a wide, shallow hull with inside ballast and a sail plan crossed the Atlantic, would not have excited comment, but occurring as it did just before the cup races, it was a tacit admission on the part of her owner and designer that the yacht was not fast enough.

While the contest decides the question of superiority as racing machines between the Reliance and Shamrock III, there has long been a growing opinion among yachting experts that a convincing test of the relative merits of opposite theories of yacht design, especially of boats which descent he is tall and slender enough to be called a typical Yankee seaman, and his cast of countenance would confirm his claim to that title.

The skipper of the Reliance is Captain Charles Barr, who steered the Columbia to victory in the two previous international contests, when Sir Thomas failed to bring winning boats across the line off Sandy Hook. The designers of the defender, it is needless to add, are the famous Herreshoff brothers, who have done much to increase the prestige of America as the land of perfect boat builders.

Shamrock III, was designed by William Fife, who also designed Shamrock I. Captain Wringe, who is considered the most daring and capable seaman in all Britain, is skipper of the challenger, and to him and the speed qualities of Shamrock III. Sir Thomas Lipton pinned his faith to "lift the America's Cup."

Two Ways of Doing Business.

The industrious man, the plain everyday kind, we mean, gets to his work early. Three hours later the man of marked executive ability drops in to see that the industries man keeps steadily at work. If everything is going well the man of marked executive ability leaves for the day, for there is no need for a display of his peculiar qualities. If everything is going ill the man of marked executive ability quits at once in order that his reputation may not be compromised by his presence.

Needed the Language.

"Pardon me," said the red-faced citizen as he rushed into a stationery store, "but have you such a thing as a dictionary of profanity?"

"Why, no, sir," stammered the clerk. "That's not my line."

"That's not my line," interrupted the customer. I had exhausted my own resources on a coal wagon that stopped at the car, when I stepped on a banana peel just as a fellow asked me if I didn't think it was a late summer, and—

—but you haven't such a thing in stock?—Curtis—very careless of you. Indiscreetly to a busy man. Good day, sir."

International Lesson Comments For August 30.

Subject: David Spares Saul, 1 Sam. xxvi. 5-12. 21-25—Golden Text, Luke vi. 27—Memory Verses, 21—Study Verses, 1-5—Commentary on the Day's Lesson.

I. David in exile. These long years of exile must have been hard indeed for David to bear, and yet they were important years in his life. The Lord has frequently seen fit to give those whom He has intended to perform some important work just such a severe training. Moses was forty years in the desert, and Paul was three years in Arabia. These years with David were most fruitful "as his apprenticeship for the kingdom, as his schools and school-masters."

(1) He learned their characteristics and how best to deal with them. (2) He could contrast the effects of their religion with those of the religion of Jehovah, and thus become confirmed in true religion and patriotism. This led to the marvelous development of religious institutions and of the service of song under his administration. (3) The exile experiences preserved him from the dangers to which his sudden elevation to power and popularity would expose him. He learned his weakness and his need of divine help. (4) He learned the value of opportunities for becoming acquainted with the people, their grievances under Saul, their needs, their dispositions and tendencies. He understood their spiritual as well as their temporal wants. (5) He had practice in the art of governing. (6) He gained experience in war. (7) He obtained a knowledge of the country. (8) In this school of fighting men were trained those generals and wise strategists who in the golden days of David's rule commanded his armies, and raised Israel from the obscurity of an "Araby" tribe, who with difficulty held their own among the ancient Canaanites, to the position of one of the great nations of the old Eastern world. (9) He had among him a trained band, like "the Old Guard," which enabled him to take immediate possession of the kingdom when the time came. (10) Many of his sweetest songs were wrought out by his long and hard experience, for the comfort and hope not only of his own people, but for God's children in all ages. (11) In spite of his few lapses from faith and perfect truth, he grew in character and manhood, he became strong in faith and virtue, large-hearted, wise, noble, consecrated to God.

II. Saul's life in David's power (vs. 5-12). David, who was a young man, was secluded in the hill of Hachilah. The Ziphites informed Saul to David's whereabouts, whereupon Saul took three thousand chosen men—his select banding army—and went in search of David. When David heard of Saul's approach he sent out spies to make sure that such was the case. A most wary chieftain was David, and not to be taken unawares by Saul, or any other foe.

III. "David arose." Probably soon after dark. "Came to the place." David was not content with the report of his men; he wished to survey the situation with his own eyes. "The trench." The place of the weapons. "R. V. The word may mean either (1) the circle surrounding the camp; or (2) a barrier formed by the baggage wagons round the camp; or (3) the place where the baggage wagons of the army were kept.

IV. "Abishai—Joab." These men were brothers, David's nephews, sons of Zeruiah, David's sister. Abishai distinguished himself by saving David's life in one of his Philistine wars (2 Sam. 21:17). Joab was put to death by Solomon's order (1 Kings 2:28-34). "His spear." When David and Abishai reached Saul's camp they saw Saul's spear stuck in the ground at his head. It was the custom for a king to always have his spear with him. The Arabs still have the same practice. "Let me smite him." Abishai asked permission of David to smite the king, and promised that the execution would be complete at the first stroke, that there would be no need of smiting him the second time.

V. "Destroy him not." It had been in David's power on a previous occasion (1 Sam. 24:1-7), and David would not injure him. "The Lord's anointed." Saul having been made king by God's special appointment, David was forbidden to harm him. "To smite him." David's heart smote him before when he merely cut off the skirt of Saul's robe (2 Sam. 21:4-5).

VI. "The Lord shall smite him." He shall die by a stroke of the divine judgment, or he shall die a natural death, in the course of nature, will be foretold, or he shall fall to battle by the enemies of his country. "Cruse of water." A small jar or flask. It resembled in some measure the canteens of our soldiers. The cruse of water at Saul's head is in exact accordance with the customs of the people at this day. No one ventures to travel over these deserts without his cruse of water, and it is very common to place one at the bolster, so that the owner can reach it during the night. "Deep sleep from the Lord." The word used here is the same as that used in Gen. 2:21 to describe the sleep which God caused to fall upon Adam, when he formed Eve out of his side. Thus we see that divine providence favored David in this daring enterprise.

VII. A conversation between Saul and David (vs. 13-25). It was probably early the next morning that David took his position on a hill so that he would be able to hear all that Saul would say to his men, and called to Saul. The people in these mountainous countries are able from long practice so to pitch their voices as to be heard distinctly at a great distance. David expostulated with Saul and refers the whole matter to God as the vindicator of the oppressed.

VIII. "I have sinned." David's words had a great effect on Saul. The king saw his wicked course and admitted that he had sinned; but this did not pardon past offenses or cause him to live right in the future. Saul needed what every sinner needs—a new heart. "Played the fool." Saul humbles himself exceedingly. "The Lord render." David here refers to himself. He is not sounding his own praises, but as he says (chap. 24:12), "I declare his confidence that God will eventually recompense him for his upright behavior. So let my life." He prays that God would show mercy on him and spare his life as he had spared Saul's. "Blessed be thou." Saul perceived that it was useless to contend longer against David, whom he saw God intended for great things. "To his place." To his home in Gibeon. They never met again.

ROBBERS ROUTED BY BEES.

Plundering Gang Disturbed an Apiary in a Freight Car.

A few nights ago a gang of railroad freight robbers descended on the West Philadelphia yards of the Pennsylvania Railroad. Several freight cars were broken open, and their contents scattered around, some of the most valuable goods being taken away. One car, however, was found with doors burst open, but nothing missing. In deed, the thieves added to the freight hats, coats, blankets, and bags of plunder being scattered all over the floor of the car.

An investigation by the railroad detectives showed that included among other freight shipment was an apiary. Special boxes were made for the bees which were en route for Linfield via the Philadelphia & Reading railroad from Philadelphia.

When the robbers tackled the boxes containing the bees there must have been a genuine surprise. It was evident the gang did not pause, but fairly flew out of the car, leaving their clothing and plunder behind.

Why She Couldn't Come.

"We're going to have such a jolly time," said the girl in blue. "A dinner first, you know, and then a theater party. Of course you'll come."

"I should like to above all things," returned the girl in gray, "but I fear it isn't possible."

"Isn't possible? Why not?"

"I'm not allowed to eat much of anything just now, and I fear such a party would be too great a temptation," explained the girl in gray sadly.

"Dieting?" queried the girl in blue. "Doctor's orders?"

"No; lawyer's."

"Lawyer's?"

"Yes. You see, my breach of promise case comes to trial pretty soon, and I'm training down to show the ravages of blighted affection."
